

Websites nowadays are fundamental tools for the communication and marketing of a company, constituting advanced communication devices that can increase the number of your contacts and thus also the size of your income.

Korutoa, through its own team, provides a service for the design and creation of professional websites. These range from the institutional, static websites, to those featuring flash animation, to numerous types of dynamic website with various features such as E-commerce or E-booking.

In addition to these exclusive designs, for each project we use audio/ visual professionals allowing us to offer products that go above and beyond expectations.

---

Thanks to professionalism and experience of our team we can realize custom application solutions for our customers. Whether they are web applications, client/server, legacy or embedded, our software development approach allows tangible results from the early stages.